Spixii and actesy Announce Partnership to Enable Financial Services Organisations to Power their Conversational Process Automation with Powerful Integration to Any Core Systems

Spixii and actesy today announced a strategic partnership to allow financial services organisations to deploy powerful self-serve. The Spixii platform will provide the conversational process automation which will be powered by the robust data integration and orchestration from the actesy platform.

Automation can only perform fully when processes are integrated with core systems. Integration with core systems can often be challenging. Through its unique data orchestration framework, actesy makes integration to any systems, modern or legacy, open with APIs or not, possible. Spixii and actesy enable businesses to leapfrog by offering true self-service for their customers.

Spixii enables businesses to build their unique processes and conversational journeys at once on its CPA platform. A key component of such processes is integration to any systems accessible in the function manager. The function manager is best suited for core systems equipped with APIs. For systems which are not yet equipped, the Spixii function manager will interface with the actesy data orchestration framework, which is connected to core systems. It means that more businesses can now benefit from powerful conversational process automation without worrying about the challenges of integrating their core systems.

The solution leverages the industry-agnostic, system and data expertise of actesy which supercharges the connectivity of the Spixii CPA platform. It combines the best of the two companies giving tremendous support to businesses to accelerate their digital and process automation journey.

"The partnership with Spixii underlines the universal applicability of the actesy data orchestration framework and enables Spixii and its users to integrate and orchestrate all relevant data regardless of the underlying technology or data source. Therefore, the built processes on the Spixii platform can easily be connected with any system/database. We are happy to partner with Spixii and setting together a new standard in conversational process automation."

Andreas Imthurn, Ph.D. HSG - CEO & Co-Founder at actesy AG

"After meeting with Andreas and learning more about the experience of actesy, the synergies between Spixii and actesy became very clear. We had countless number of conversations with businesses which would love to integrate their processes built on the Spixii platform but are reticent because their core systems seem difficult to integrate. actesy is changing this perception and does the heavy-lifting for them. We are pleased to partner with actesy to create a very compelling combined solution."
