

Press Release: Partnership actesy – BLP Digital

Zürich/St. Gallen, October, 11, 2022

In recent years, companies have been driving digital transformation at an incredible pace - partly due to the pandemic, but largely due to changing customer expectations and market demands. For many of them, process automation is one of the first game changers. Companies that automate highly manual processes quickly and visibly benefit from greater efficiency and speed as well as a lower error rate and workload. The use of artificial intelligence is considered an important tool for improving and modernizing solutions in process automation. Furthermore, artificial intelligence is also increasingly used in data processing, so that efficiency is greatly improved by intelligent automatic processes.

BLP Digital is based on a simple business idea: a generic AI that fully automates document-based ERP processes (supplier invoices, delivery bills, order confirmations, customer orders, etc.) from day one, without having known the documents beforehand. In a recent article in BILANZ, the founding team describes their vision so that they want to provide ERP-agnostic the best process automation solution from SMB to Enterprise to maintain the competitiveness of the local economy. This vision has partly been realized, so that BLP Digital has developed by far the most technologically capable software in the market, which includes great industry and process expertise. The focus on data quality and automation makes it fundamental to have seamless access to the data which are relevant for the ERP-processes. A software that allows access to data for everyone through an automated process is essential. Just as important, however, is how this data is fetched from the upstream systems and can flow into BLP Digital.

This is when actesy and BLP Digital's partnership starts to be interesting: the data integration process needs to be seamless, quick, and easy for everyone and with everything. According to Andreas Imthurn: “The partnership with BLP Digital underlines the universal applicability of the actesy integration solution and enables BLP Digital to integrate all relevant data regardless of the underlying technology or data source.” This partnership opens the door for the ERP-agnostic process automation solution, which BLP's founder team is envisioning while guaranteeing highest quality and trustworthiness.

Tim Beck, BLP Digital's CEO and co-founder also sees the partnership as a great opportunity:

“By partnering with actesy we really want companies to lower any barrier to a successful implementation of their relevant systems for the process automation: it all starts with data - from the ingestion to a smarter way to clean them to ensure accurate and robust data quality”

With the goal of digital transformation, existing processes must be optimized and, if necessary, redefined. Only then can further steps such as process automation realize their full potential. In all cases, the partnership between actesy and BLP Digital offers all interested parties and customers the certainty that they can use a sustainable and technologically most advanced solution.

At Glance:

BLP Digital was founded 2019 as an ETH and HSG spin-off by Tim Beck, Sven Beck, Sabrina Schenardi and Thore Harmuth who are determined to develop erp-agnostic the best process automation solution on the market. BLP Digital operates in the process automation industry. The software is a generic AI that fully automates document-based ERP processes (supplier invoices, delivery bills, order confirmations, customer orders, etc.) from day one, without having known the documents beforehand.

actesy AG was founded 2017 as a HSG spin-off by Peter Imthurn, Sandro Secci and Andreas Imthurn who are determined to democratize data access to any system and enabling data orchestration across all of them. actesy is a complete integration and data orchestration framework that connects and orchestrates data and systems independent of the data source and underlying technology.
